Hi Susan, I read a book entitled 'The Boy Who Cried Wolf'. The book has 20 pages and colourful illustrations. The words are also in big fonts, making them easy to read. This story is fascinating as it includes a moral value. In this story, the boy likes to trick people by telling lies. He does this frequently until the villagers lose their trust in him. They no longer want to help. The boy regretted his acts after an accident happened. You should read the story. I am sure you will love it. Maran

Hi Dad,

I need your permission to go to Kellie's Castle in Batu Gajah. My school's History Club is organising the trip. It is on Saturday, the 17th of August. We will go there by a school bus. They provide packed lunch and drinking water for all participants. I want to see the castle and learn about its history. It is the biggest uncompleted mansion, and I plan to take photographs of the castle for my History project. I also want to explore this haunted castle. I hope to get your permission.

Your son,
Jason
